TUCK'S POST CARD

CARTE POSTALE.

The Nun. There are three varieties of the Nun pigeons, viz.—black, red, and yellow. These have the same markings as the bird illustrated. It is supposed that they derived their name from the black variety, the head having the appearance of being covered by a black veil. They originally came from Germany, and have now been bred in this country for many years. The markings of a good choice specimen should be as sharp and clean cut as possible, with a well formed hood, or as it is sometimes called a shell-crest.
